

BOOK LAUNCH

Enrico Gargiulo

Residency, a form of municipal membership, plays a strategic role in administrative processes in Italy. It is a two-faced juridical status: a means for exercising rights and moving freely within a state territory and a control tool that operates through identification and registration. Residency is investigated both historically and theoretically, to show that the status of resident is a special kind of border, namely, a status border, which draws the lines of local citizenship. By explaining that the mechanisms of exclusion from residency work as administrative barriers, and showing their aims and effects in terms of civic stratification and differential inclusion, this book contributes to the debates on local citizenship, borders, and discretionary power.

UPPSALA
FORUM

democracy, peace & justice

February 17, 2021 / 10.15 - 12.00

on Zoom <https://uu-se.zoom.us/j/65968152252>

Enrico Gargiulo is associate professor of Sociology at the Department of Political and Social Sciences at the University of Bologna, Italy. He is a scholar of citizenship, local membership and migrants' integration.

Lena Karamanidou is a researcher at the Department of Economics and Law of Glasgow Caledonian University. Her research focuses on the European border regime, border violence, racism and exclusion. She is an expert on the Greek-Turkish border and a member of the EU-funded project RESPOND.

Bernd Kasperek is a mathematician and cultural anthropologist researching in the interdisciplinary field of migration and border studies. He focuses on the European border regime and processes of Europeanisation. He is a member of the editorial board of Movements - Journal for critical migration and border regime studies and a member of the EU-funded project RESPOND.

Organisers: Uppsala Forum on Democracy, Peace and Justice, The Center for Integrated Research on Culture and Society, The Uppsala Research Network on Migration as a Legal and Political Process and The Higher Seminar in Philosophy of Law